Ten BCC bioscience students finished year-long paid stem cell research internships this summer. Their research projects were funded by the California Institute of Regenerative Medicine (CIRM). They presented posters of their scientific research at CIRM’s Bridges Scientific Meeting in San Francisco in July. The interns conducted research in laboratories at the University of California San Francisco, UC Berkeley, UC Los Angeles BioMed and Children’s Hospital Oakland Research Institute (CHORI).

Works by Erica Gagnon, president of Berkeley City College’s Digital Artists Collective (DAC), were featured in local, statewide and national exhibits this year. They included Viridian Artists’ 25th International Juried Exhibition and at the New York Center for Photography Arts; at L.A.’s Pico House Gallery; at San Francisco’s Museum of Modern Art; and at Berkeley’s Expressions Gallery. Several also were included in the Berkeley Civic Center’s permanent collection.
