Lisa R. Cook has been appointed Berkeley City College’s Dean of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences, Tram Vo-Kumamoto, Vice President of Instruction, announced. Dean Cook spent 17 years as a Laney College faculty member, teaching English as a Second Language and as a tutoring coordinator. Besides teaching, she has led a variety of projects at Laney and for the Peralta Community College District. One recent project which involved district wide collaboration with ESL faculty, resulted in a revamped and highly effective ESL curriculum. Dean Cook earned her bachelor’s degree in English (Creative Writing) from the Naropa Institute (now Naropa University) in Boulder, Colorado and holds a master’s degree in applied linguistics from the University of Massachusetts, Boston. She also served as a Peace Corps volunteer in the Marshall Islands and as a teacher/trainer at a college in Jinzhou, Liaoning Province, China. Stop by her office on the 4th floor to welcome her to BCC.

Dr. Francisco Gamez has been appointed Dean of Business, Science and Applied Technology at Berkeley City College. His appointment was announced by Tram Vo-Kumamoto, Vice President of Instruction. Dean Gamez most recently served as Assistant Dean of Undergraduate Studies for the University of San Francisco’s (USF) School of Management. During his time at USF, he held a variety of administrative posts, including directorships of the university’s strategic and undergraduate programs. He lead and facilitated the integration of USF’s professional management (similar to BCC’s CTE programs) and undergraduate programs. Dr. Gamez earned a doctorate in Education from USF and his master’s and bachelor’s degree from California State University, Hayward (now CSU, East Bay). Visit his office on the 4th floor and welcome him to the college.

Faculty in BCC’s Multimedia Arts Department have revised or developed new associate degree and certificate programs in several new areas. They include Associate in Arts degrees in: Animation; Imaging: Infographic Design and Data Visualization; Mobile and Web Design; and Video Arts. New and revised Certificates of Achievement are in: Animation—Level II; Game Design—Level I; Imaging—Information Graphics and Digital Design; Imaging: Photography and Printmaking; Mobile and Web Design—Level I; and Mobile and Web Design—Level II. The new and revised programs recently were approved by the State Chancellor’s Office of the California Community Colleges.

The Bay Area Book Festival, one of the most diverse and popular events in the region, arrives in Downtown Berkeley on Sat. & Sun., June 4 & 5. Berkeley City College will be one of several dozen venues for this year’s festivities. More than 50,000 people attended in 2015. This year’s free and open to the public event features more than 300 local, national, and international authors who will read their works, debate, present and sing in indoor auditoriums and on outdoor stages throughout Downtown. Exhibitors include publishers, independent bookstores, literary and literacy organizations, library services, writing programs, book artists, authors, and more. For a information and a festival schedule, visit http://www.baybookfest.org/content/schedule/schedule.html.
